

Paradox

It's been explained everywhere. Even the smallest decision that someone could or would make could have colossal effects towards that person or others. This wouldn't mean that it would happen everywhere and every time you made a decision, but that it could happen.

In the supposed future of the 32nd century we have the human race which has still somehow survived even of all the theories of the human race dying from antibiotics would probably no longer have any effect on all the biggest diseases due to them evolving and taking the antibiotics to their advantage or maybe human warfare they are still here and thriving. Many huge wars have still happened such as the infamous World War Z consisting of the war against the zombies. I know what you're probably thinking ironic right. Wrong. Since the release of all the zombie shows or famous movies this had promoted more intake into whether we could make the undead, only now instead of those which you have seen in the movies we have incredibly intelligent zombies with very little mobility from all the war testing. Anyways enough of all the setting that would give away too much information and now this future you would have would be completely different. See now that I gave you this 'non important' information to you in the future you would have all the important people around you turn out not to be the people you had made all the important discoveries. Or at least this is how I learned it. Gtan (Y-an) which is the weird way in your time people would say there names is the way we do it now. Is the one of the so called "Original" human beings which haven't been brought over to the robotic bodies even though he is old enough. We have all our info transferred into our heads that we would need. He is a genius of course. I saw him on my way to get all powered up. He was protesting. He knew that he had to do something to save the human beings from all this technology. Time Machines have been made, but were forbidden from use of anyone except the government. He knew that the government was trying to form the perfect world for everyone. Humans and the robots lived together since they were all the same, but robotic humans end their lives before they live to help out the work of the humans. The parents must have a say if they were willing to help most do, due to pride. Going back to me and Gtan he of course asks for anyone to help and I do just due to me not liking the way we live now all boring, we make no more progress on Earth now we have reached a stop point. We can't find life anywhere else, but Earth. We start making a plan for us to go towards the future and see what happens in the future we are heading in. We attempt it for many years and finally we have it. A time machine that could send us to the future and back. We go to the future and the Earth is on red alert. We are at the end of humans as we know it. It was a Black Hole it was sucking up all life on Earth as well as the Galaxy. A time Paradox had occurred time and space had been toyed with. My friend and I had traveled back to stop this from ever happening. This story probably doesn't make sense, but it will in the end. We travel back and we know what we have to do. We have seen it in so many movies, we would have to travel to the past to stop this from ever happening and when we make our leave I realize it. It was a paradox. That future had already happened and if we were trying to stop it we couldn't do that. Therefore there was nothing we could do to stop the cause of what happens in the future, but there are different dimensions, tons of different ones. Maybe ones the Humans die way earlier or we live longer with world peace, but that this story should be made so that it could never happen.
